via the Mac OS X System Preferences.. And last but not least you can quit the app using OS Xs standard system-wide Command Q keyboard combo.. When you turn this on youll be notified every time a new app wants to send or receive data.. If for example you were looking at the top part of a very large list in Finder and then clicked the bottom of the scroll bar Jump to the next page would take several clicks to reach the bottom of the list but with Jump to the spot it would take only one.
